

TRANSPORT & MOBILITY SEMINAR

Transport is the life-blood of the economy. Mobility is one of the most powerful enablers in terms of improving quality of life and productivity. However, Africa's cities are all too often congested, polluted and inefficient. Greenhouse gas emissions are harmful to the health, while transport inefficiencies push up the cost of doing business. It's time to turn this around. The Transport and Mobility Seminar focuses on the opportunities that mobility affords, from achieving city development goals to creating new, sustainable economic opportunities, not to mention the infrastructure and policy shifts required for sustainable regional economic development.
